Love is the Key

The Power of you to Channel Healing

By Anne Jones – www.annejones.org

In this book I am introducing a simple and natural way to enhance your own in-born healing abilities. The steps I will share are the down to earth and straight forward – the way I believe healing should be – without mysticism, without too much ritual and without ego.

We surrender ourselves to be clear channels of love – of divine love. We clear the way by our own dedication to self healing and then we surrender to our higher self, the higher self of our client and divine forces.

God has a number of spiritually advanced and evolved beings who can assist us in our work and send us messages through our mind and imagination, our senses and our hearts to give the best opportunity for our client to heal so you will not be alone in your work and will always have help.

Remember that all healing is the choice of the recipient – you are merely the channel to pass the best energies you can to help them. If they choose to ignore or use the energies in ways that you had not visualised or anticipated – that is their affair! You cannot and should not take responsibility for the outcome.

However, every single act of love, every single healing session, no matter how short, will leave the person changed in some way for the better and a seed will be planted that can be utilised when the time is right according to their journey.

Using the energies of healing, that are free and open for us all, is a great privilege and will bring you nothing but joy.

Love and blessings
