

MESSAGE FROM ANNE

Interesting thing responsibility.

Spiritually we cannot take responsibility for another person for we cannot be them to make their decisions for them. If we try to change someone we are invading their right to free will and this goes against spiritual law – one cannot take away another's right of choice.

Of course, we are responsible for the wellbeing of our children but its easy to overstep the mark for family members and those very close to us and instead of nurturing, loving and caring for them we can easily slip into controlling ways and that in essence is the invasion we need to avoid.

On the other hand individuals have increasingly renounced their personal responsibility by looking for blame for everything that happens to them, expecting health service providers, State and governments, local and central to take that responsibility from them.

We are all responsible at one level or another for everything that happens to us. We attract energies like magnets either positive or negative depending on our thought patterns and attitudes. These energies bring situations that either challenge, upset or uplift us.

The reverse is also true for through our personal situation we are also responsible for what is happening in our community, town or country.

How do we affect those around us?

By our own personal integrity, honesty, positivity and love we create an energy centre that radiates to everyone else around us – this ripple then feeds this energy, whether positive or negative, to everyone else from home, to town to country and in the long run the world.

So ultimately we are all responsible for the wellbeing of everyone else!

With love, Anne
